For A Good Cause

“How do you plead?”

“I’m innocent, your honor. I did nothing wrong.”

“Whaddaya mean ‘nothing wrong’? The cops caught you coming out of a bank with a gun and a sack of money!”

“But that money came from only business and institutional accounts, and I’m going to use it to help poor people pay their power and gas bills. I’m a caring compassionate person.”

“A crook is what you are. Do you give any of your own money to poor people? Did it occur to you to ask these businesses if they would donate money to your cause?”

“No, but I don’t spend much of the money on myself. Besides I’m a Public Service Commissioner. We are constantly taking money from one group and giving it to another group with more political clout. Our policy is to give away other people’s money to deserving voters and lobbyists.”

“You may be guilty of greater crimes than I thought.”
